

INDOCHINA CRISIS NOT HOPELESS: DULLES

About Town

And Country
By TIMOTHEUS T.

It's All in The Line of Duty for The City Police

NIGHTLIFE IN HARRISBURG: It was time to change the shift and three city officers happened to be together when a call came around 10 p. m. to go to a West Harrisburg address.

When the officers arrived the man who lived there said that one of his ducks had been stolen, that he knew who had taken it. He gave the officers the name of a lad.

The officers went to the home of the boy and he told them that he had just taken the duck over and put it in the town park lagoon, where it could swim.

The man wanted his duck so the police car meandered through the gravel roads around the lagoon, shining a spotlight on the sleepy waters in an effort to locate the duck.

It finally was spotted and the group got out of the car, trying to shoo the bird to shore. They almost succeeded once and one of the officers almost went into the waters as he lost his balance on a near-miss grab.

There happened to be some boys swimming on down in the lagoon and they were summoned to get the duck. They did and the episode is now over.

IF YOU'RE RIDING around in the town park at 10 p. m. you may not need to know the rules of the road, but with Illinois leading the league in the number of Memorial Day week-end highway deaths, there evidently are plenty in this State of Lincoln who need to know more about them.

This column from time to time has given a few taken from Secretary of State Carpentier's Rules of the Road, a booklet which is quite comprehensive.

Highway police will tell you with-out reservation that speed is the big cause of highway fatalities. Many are caused by other factors, but most of the time speed is the big thing involved. In Carpentier's booklet is a page entitled Speed, and here is what it says:

"Speed is a serious factor in many of the deaths which result from accidents. Speed is not always, in itself, the primary cause, but coupled with other difficulties it becomes the added ingredient which turns a minor mishap into a death or serious injury.

"The real danger of excessive speed lies in the increased severity, rather than the increased frequency of accidents. The probability of death to car occupants increases out of proportion to the increase of speed.

A car travelling 20 miles an hour has the same energy and destructive power as if it were dropped to the ground from the roof of a one-story building. At 40 miles an hour this is comparable to a drop from a four-story building. At 60 miles an hour the force and destructive power is comparable to driving the car from the roof of a ten-story building!

"The basic speed law of Illinois regarding passenger vehicles is... no person shall drive a vehicle... upon any public highway in this state at a speed greater than is reasonable and proper having regard to the traffic and the use of the way or so to endanger the life or limb or injure the property of any person."

Mr. McDowell is survived by his wife, Lucille; two sons, John Darr and William Earl, at home, and a sister, Mrs. Lena Carnithan of Eldorado.

Senate Passes Housing Bill By Voice Vote

Victory for Ike May Be Watered Down by Conferees

WASHINGTON (AP)—Key legislators today voted the administration's housing bill would be somewhat watered down and altered by the time it is ready for the President's signature.

The Senate shouted down a southern Democratic move to scuttle President Eisenhower's public housing proposals and then in near-record time passed the overall measure containing most of his other housing recommendations.

It was one of the administration's brightest victories in the current session. But it won't be final until House and Senate conferees meet next Friday to iron out the differences between the House and Senate versions of the measure.

Congressional horse trading in the conference appeared likely to reduce the 140,000-unit public housing program and alter some of the President's other recommendations.

Approved by Voice Vote

The Senate approved its housing bill by a voice vote after three hours of debate. The only controversy centered around the public housing program in which the government subsidizes rental housing built for low-income families by local authorities.

The southern Democratic move to kill all public housing stemmed from fears growing out of a Supreme Court anti-segregation ruling. It was led by Sen. Burnet R. Maybank (D-S.C.).

By a 66 to 16 vote, the Senate then adopted the administration's public housing program, calling for 140,000 units to be constructed over a four-year period. The crucial vote, 35 Republicans and 28 Democrats lined up behind the administration proposal and 13 Democrats, two Republicans and one independent opposed.

Called Victory for Ike

Chairman Homer E. Capehart (R-Ind.), who guided the housing bill through the Banking committee and Senate, proclaimed the Senate's action as "an administration victory." He called the measure "the most liberal housing bill ever passed."

The House, in passing the housing bill early in April, rejected the administration's public housing program by a 211 to 176 vote. After a political tangle between Democrats and Republicans, the House also voted against authorizing construction of any more public housing units.

Well-placed legislators are predicting a compromise authorization of 35,000 public housing units for one year, rather than 35,000 for four years as recommended by the administration.

Aside from public housing, the house bill in many respects is more liberal than the Senate bill, particularly on terms for government mortgages on individual homes and the administration's slum clearance-urban renewal program.

Southern Baptists Take Up Problem of Racial Segregation

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The Southern Baptist Convention was scheduled to deal with the thorny problem of racial segregation tonight.

The issue was to hit the floor in the form of a report by the Christian Life Commission.

A copy of the report said, "It is time for us to remember that racial advantage is not racial supremacy."

It said the recent Supreme Court cases on the issue "should not have been a surprise to any of us—they have been in the making for half a century."

Courts Redford, executive secretary of the Home Mission Board, said Thursday night that helping minority groups is "dear to the hearts of all Southern Baptists."

"We want to help the minority groups, the neglected people, the underprivileged, the isolated and those who have fallen by the wayside," he said.

He said the board will place emphasis in 1957 on increasing the number of mission centers "to care for the multitudes."

William B. "Scotty" Orr last night was appointed assessor of Eldorado township by the Eldorado town board.

Mr. Orr succeeds the late Sol Green, who died Monday. This morning Mr. Orr, an Eldorado justice of the peace, turned in his books for that office.

Clear Way For Publishing Some Of Stevens Calls

Only Talks With Individual Senators Will Be Involved

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate investigators cleared the way today for publishing some of Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens' telephone talks about his troubles with Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy.

Prospects were as dim as ever, however, that the particular monitored calls which have generated the most heat in the 27 days of Army-McCarthy hearings would ever see the light of day.

Virtually ruled out were transcripts of monitored calls between Stevens and Army counsel John G. Adams; Stevens and Maj. Gen. Kirke B. Lawton, the commandant of Ft. Monmouth, N. J.; Stevens and Roy M. Cohn; and between Adams and Francis P. Carr.

Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.) and Army special counsel Joseph N. Welch agreed, during a private huddle, that records of monitored talks between Stevens and individual members of the investigating subcommittee—including McCarthy—could be put into the record.

This, however, would be done at the option of the individual senators. How many calls might thus be made public was uncertain.

Welch, McCarthy Agree

Welch and McCarthy agreed it would be futile to continue wrangling over the calls that did not involve senators.

The investigating subcommittee spent most of the morning arguing and quarreling about the telephone records—which have periodically stalled the proceedings for weeks.

It was agreed to call three of Stevens' secretarial aides to make further identification of the calls after these developments:

1. The McCarthy-Welch "agreement" that McCarthy's position and a May 17 presidential secrecy order would prevent making all of Stevens' monitored calls public.

McCarthy has opposed making public calls by Cohn and Carr, of his staff, unless the President would release intra-administration calls.

2. Further accord between Welch and McCarthy that the committee should hear the transcript of all calls between Stevens and subcommittee members and between Stevens and McCarthy—at the discretion of the individual senators.

3. Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) demanded testimony showing what calls were barred by the presidential order and asserted that Mr. Eisenhower would have to accept responsibility, although he (McClellan) might agree that some should be withheld.

4. McCarthy said he would have no objection to putting his own calls in the record if the other senators did.

5. Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.) and McCarthy engaged in an angry shouting match and an exchange of challenges about procedure for releasing the calls after Symington expressed fear that his calls would be misinterpreted unless all calls were made public.

McClellan Objects

McClellan entered a vigorous protest to the procedure Welch and McCarthy agreed upon.

Special counsel Ray H. Jenkins told newsmen McClellan's objection might interfere with the Welch-McCarthy agreement to let records on Stevens' talks with McCarthy and other subcommittee members go into the record.

On the other hand, Jenkins said, the Welch-McCarthy agreement does not block a move to get what McClellan wants—sworn testimony, from persons who monitored Stevens' calls, on the overall number and the participants in the conversations.

Spray Drainage Ditches in County With Helicopter

Spraying of drainage ditches in Saline county for the control of brush in the ditch and along the rights of way is underway today by a helicopter from the Stulls Helicopter Service, Seebree, Ky.

At present the helicopter is spraying the Black Land Drainage ditch, the Black Land-Eldorado mutual drainage ditch and the Eldorado drainage ditch.

Low volatile brush killer containing 2.4,5-T plus 2,4-D is used which concentrates the chemical on the brush without spreading.

The helicopter flies directly over the top of the brush and drives the chemical downward into the underbrush. The helicopter, while spraying, flies very slow—at 25 to 30 miles per hour.

The helicopter spraying operations will be extended to Hamilton and White counties following completion of work in Saline county.

Defense Dep't Asks Congress to Permit A-Information to Allies

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Defense Department asked Congress today for authority to give this country's allies information on the "design and fabrication" of our atomic weapons, as well as their size, weight, and shape.

Under the department's proposal, President Eisenhower would decide how much of this information it was necessary to divulge. The proposal to divulge "design and fabrication" information is certain to meet strong congressional objection. Previous official proposals for giving allies information on combat use of atomic weapons have stressed that no data on their manufacture would be disclosed.

But Asst. Defense Secretary Donald A. Quarles told the House-Senate Atomic Energy Committee today that the Joint Chiefs of Staff cannot carry out their responsibilities in helping arm the North Atlantic Treaty countries without the requested broader authority.

He described as too restrictive legislation proposed by Rep. W. Sterling Cole (R-N. Y.), committee chairman, and Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa), vice chairman. This legislation, revising the Atomic Energy Act, would make available to Allied military forces for the first time information on "external size, weight, and shape" of available atomic weapons. But it would not transmit information on design and manufacture.

Foundations: Prof. David N. Rowe of Yale told a House investigating committee there are 1,000 persons "advancing the interests of world communism" for every person carrying a Communist Party card.

"People who can be tagged and tracked by the FBI are a small minority," he said in testimony before the special committee investigating tax-free foundations.

Appropriations: The House Appropriations committee voted today to give the Labor and Health, Education and Welfare departments almost the entire $1,952,144,261 they requested to spend in fiscal 1955. The welfare agency asked $1,652,509,261 and got $1,637,615,911, a cut of only $14,894,250. The Labor Department was asked $298,704,000, a cut of only $931,000.

Construction: The House committee also gave the Army, Navy and Air Force a go-ahead on $48,769,400 in construction projects which had been held in abeyance pending final clearance. Actual work can not start, however, until the Senate Appropriations committee approves the projects.

Farm: Two congressional farm leaders predicted the House Agriculture committee will vote to extend present high level farm price supports. But they disagree for how long.

Rep. Harold D. Cooley (D-N.C.), ranking Democrat on the committee, said the group will "probably" approve a Democratic plan for a three-year extension of the present 90 per cent of parity supports on basic crops.

But a high-ranking Republican member predicted the committee will vote a one-year extension of the present program and provide for a farmer referendum to determine whether a two-price support plan should go into operation in 1956 for wheat and possibly cotton.

Either action would be a defeat for President Eisenhower. He has recommended shifting to a "flexible" or sliding scale system of price props for wheat, corn, cotton, rice and peanuts after this year.

Under the present program, the so-called basic crops must be supported at 90 per cent of "fair price" parity. The administration's flexible program would allow the secretary of agriculture to vary the support level between 75 and 90 per cent of parity in line with supply and demand.

Carrier Blast Death Toll Rises to 102

QUONSET POINT, R. I. (AP)—The death toll in the explosions and fire aboard the aircraft carrier Bennington May 26 rose to 102 today.

The latest victim, who died at Newport Naval Hospital, was Alton Lee Robinson, steward mate seaman, son of Mrs. Lottie Robinson, Cleveland, Ohio.

A Navy spokesman said there still were seven men on the critical list and 11 on the serious list. Those in critical condition included Aviation Ordnance Mate 3-c. Harold J. Pennington, Hoopeson, Ill.

Report U. S. Lists Conditions For Intervention

GENEVA (AP)—Authoritative sources here reported today that the United States has firming up its assurances to France of American air and naval aid in Indochina if Red Chinese or Soviet planes join in the Indochina conflict.

Responsible sources here said "big decisions" have been taken in Washington on the conditions under which the United States would feel obligated to intervene in the Far Eastern war.

There has been no official announcement. But the reported Franco-U. S. agreement appeared to have paved the way for these decisive moves: French Make Decisive Moves

1. Appointment of Gen. Paul Ely, chief of the French armed forces and the nation's top military leader, as commander-in-chief in Indochina with sweeping military and civil powers.

2. A French decision to send every available reinforcement to the defense of Hanoi and the vital Red River delta.

3. The initialing in Paris today of an independence treaty with Viet Nam, largest and most important of the three associated states of Indochina.

4. Plans for the prompt departure from the sunny Riviera of Emperor Bao Dai for Viet Nam where he will lead his people in the showdown struggle against the Communist Viet Minh.

Wanted Clearer Commitments

The French made it clear earlier this week that they wanted more firm and clear commitments from the United States on which to base their planning.

Such commitments now are understood to have been given. The Far East conference itself marked time today as it became increasingly evident that events in the field—at Paris, in London and Washington—would decide the outcome of attempts to end the 8-year-old Indochina war.

British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden was to fly to London Saturday to report to an emergency cabinet session his views on whether the negotiations here should continue a bit longer or be labelled a failure.

Before leaving, Eden sought to persuade the U. S. that it would be better to settle for a modest political victory in Indochina than risk American intervention by gambling for total victory. Eden met with Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov to argue this point before today's 15th Indochina conference session.

Award Contract For 1955 Illinois License Plates

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Hemp & Co. of Macomb today held the contract for manufacture of 1955 Illinois motor vehicle license plates. Hemp & Co. has made the state's license plates since shortly after World War II. Secretary of State Charles F. Carpentier, who announced award of the contract, said:

Hemp & Company's bid was 23.2 cents a plate, the same price paid by the state in 1953 and 1954. The only other bid was submitted by S. G. Adams & Co. of St. Louis. The state had asked 17 firms to bid.

Carpentier said the 1955 plates will bear the slogan "Land of Lincoln" across the bottom. The slogan appeared for the first time across the top of 1954 plates. The 1955 plates will have the figures "19" and "55" separated by the word "Illinois" across the top.

Carpentier said he will select the 1955 colors soon. He said application blanks for next year's plates will be available about Oct. 1, with license holders having until Nov. 1 to apply for reassignment of 1954 numbers.

Says Reds Seek To Take Over Southeast Asia

Secretary Testifies At Senate Hearing On Foreign Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said today the Indochina situation "is grave but by no means hopeless."

Dulles said Communist China has been supplying to Red rebels in Indochina "an ever-increasing volume of munitions and military supplies" in an effort to take over all of Southeast Asia. He said there is evidence Soviet arms have been supplied in increasing quantities to the Red forces.

"The situation in Indochina is fraught with danger, not only to the immediate area but to the security of the United States and its allies in the Pacific area," Dulles told the Senate Foreign Relations committee.

The committee is holding hearings on the administration's $3.2-billion dollar proposed foreign aid program.

Reds' Attitude Not Encouraging

Dulles said the United States and its allies are trying to find a formula at the Geneva Far East conference to end the Indochinese fighting but that "so far the Communist attitude is not encouraging."

Therefore, he said, it is "impossible to predict what the future holds."

Turning to the European situation, Dulles said the United States and its allies have made progress to improve their defenses under the North Atlantic Treaty. He added that "considerable progress" has been made toward formation of the European Defense Community but noted that France and Italy still have failed to ratify the six-nation treaty.

This delay, he said, contributes "a negative factor" to free world strategy.

Wiley Says Reds Stab Toes

Before he testified, Sen. Alexander Wiley (R-Wis.) promised a "careful" review of the foreign aid program.

Wiley said Russia has "stabbed its toes" so badly at Geneva that it now appears the free world will be able "to get together on a security pact in Southeast Asia."

Wiley, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, said the stubborn and intransigent Communist tactics at the peace conference also may result in French ratification of the European Defense Community, which the Soviet bloc has bent every effort to prevent, and the commitment of more French troops to the Indochina war front.

Questioning of Dulles was expected to center on plans for the defense of Southeast Asia. Foreign Operations Administrator Harold E. Stassen said Thursday that the administration wants $1,133,000,000 for aid to Indochina and the Far East.

Plan Is Controversial

Dulles has already asked the House side for a free hand to apportion that aid in the Far East rather than have most of it funneled through France as at present. That plan has caused some controversy in the House and may be controversial in the Senate as well.

At the same time, U. S., British, French, Australian and New Zealand military leaders continued their secret Pentagon talks on the admittedly worsening situation in Southeast Asia. Informed sources said France outlined the overall problem Thursday and indications were that the group would buckle down today to estimating what might be needed to support any United Allied action against Communist aggression.

The coal char process involves the crushing of coal which in turn is fed continuously into a carbonization chamber in which heat temperatures are considerably less than coke ovens. After gases and tars are drawn off for use as coal chemicals, the char is removed and is used as boiler fuel for heating.

Directors Decry House Probe Of Tax-Exempt Foundations

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — from attack by their poorer GOP colleagues.

The fact that these foundations are tax exempt gives the Congress a legitimate right to inquire into their activities. But the type of investigation which the Reece committee staff, under Counsel Renee A. Wormser, has so far conducted is considered by the foundation directors as a one-sided, distorted and untrue view of what they have been doing.

This whole business started last July when Representative Reece made a speech demanding a congressional investigation of foundations. There is a well-founded suspicion that the original motive was political.

Representative Reece is a former GOP National Committee chairman. He had supported the late Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio for the GOP presidential nomination in 1952. After the Chicago convention there was considerable bitterness against Paul Hoffman, who had taken leave of the Ford Foundation to organize the Eisenhower nomination campaign.

THE OPEN CHARGE made against all foundations in general and the Ford Foundation in particular was that they were "using their resources for un-American and subversive activities, for political purposes, propaganda, or attempts to influence legislation."

In October, 1953, however, the charges of subversion were subordinated. It was announced that they had been looked into, and there was little there. The Reece committee took a new tack.

This was revealed when the committee hearings opened and Norman Dodd, its director of research, presented his report on six months of study. It intimated the exist ence of a gigantic conspiracy on the part of the leaders of American education, the foundations and the federal government to internationalize U. S. thinking and direct it toward the social sciences.

What emerged was a set of charges regarded as utterly fantastic by the foundation representatives who have been observing the hearings. In brief, the charges seem to boil down to this:

Changes in the U. S. educational system in the last 50 years have been un-American. These changes are the result of a plot on the part of the foundation trustees who have spent their millions in ways and for purposes never intended by the donors.

THE "CARTEL" OF ORGANIZATIONS financed by such grants and alleged to have put this over include: The American Council of Learned Societies, National Research Council, American Council on Education, National Education Association (founded 1857), etc., supplemented by such others as the Parent-Teacher Associations and National Council of Churches.

All have, of course, been considered so eminently respectable as to be viewed as reactionary by progressives.

The new and particular villain of the plot, however, seems to be the Fund for the Advancement of Education. It was formed only three years ago with a grant of $55 million from Ford Foundation. Its purpose was openly and frankly selective research and experiment at projects to improve and further develop formal education.

Chairman of the fund is Frank W. Abrams, for many years head of Standard Oil of New Jersey. Others on the fund's board include Roy Larsen of Time, Philip Reed of General Electric, Paul Mellon and Owen J. Roberts, former Supreme Court Justice.

None of these nor any other foundation officials have as yet been requested to testify and tell their side of the story.

Jerry turned and looked at Elaine with astonished eyes. Then his glance shifted toward the booth where Astrid and Tom still talked. When his eyes fell on Elaine again, there was a gleam of sympathy in them.

"I didn't get it at first," he said. Then he nodded toward Tom and Astrid. "If it's the women folks that bother you, I'd get Tom away from them. Astrid and his mother both."

The record dropped and the jukebox needle moved over to its edge. With a quick anticipatory gesture, Jerry put his hand on her waist.

"You can do it, now," he said. The music erupted and Jerry's feet began to move. Then he added with a seriousness she hadn't expected from him. "Do it now, Lenny. Or it may be too late."

Jerry Schmidt's words seemed to bounce along the waves of music that flowed from the jukebox, giving Elaine's feet a staccato rhythm that refused to follow Jerry's variations on the Polish hop. He stopped and smiled encouragement.

"Take it easy, kid, nothing is as hard as it seems. Not even the Polish hop. You can handle your husband and the Polish hop if you try real hard. Now for dancing, follow me." He squeezed her hand and some of his bravado passed into her.

Before she could stop herself, Elaine was jiving with Jerry and enjoying it. Their lively feet danced through 50 cents' worth of canned jukebox music all too soon. They returned to the booth laughing. Self-confidence had returned to Elaine and she felt that Astrid was no longer a threat to her. No more dangerous than the lukewarm hot chocolate awaiting Jerry and her.

Tom forced a smile as he helped Elaine into her seat. Looking down at the cup of chocolate before him, he grimaced and said, "I'd better order hot refills," and he started to motion toward a waitress.

Instinctively Elaine checked him. She knew her self-confidence would dissolve if she remained seated across from Astrid longer than a few moments. In self-defense she said, "Never mind, Tom, unless Jerry is perishing from lack of nourishment."

She glanced at Jerry, hoping that he would read the appeal in her eyes.

Immediately, Jerry stood up and took Astrid's stole from the hook at the end of the booth. "Hot chocolate is child's liquor," he said. "Besides," he added with good-natured scoffing and a grin, "since Tom is one of those farmers who thinks his cows will be uncontented if they aren't milked promptly at 5:30, we'd better take him home so Elaine can tuck him in his rumble bed."

"Okay, wise guy," said Tom. As they settled themselves in the back seat of Jerry's car, Tom slid his arm through hers and pulled her close. Elaine sighed and put her head on his shoulder. Everything was going to be all right as long as Tom wanted her. Not even the very real Astrid, right in front of them, could mar the feeling of happiness and contentment that came to her.

As they drove into the Dahlstrom yard, Elaine suddenly realized that she was hungry. Certainly Jerry must be after all that jitterbugging.

Maybe Astrid and Tom were, too. Her mouth watered at the thought of the delicious sandwiches she could make out of the meatloaf left over from supper, a bit of melted cheese and the homemade graham bread. Then her mouth went dry as the fallen oak leaves on the hillside. She wouldn't dare invite anybody into Mrs. Dahlstrom's house without permission, much less take the food she had prepared.

Like rust on a field of golden wheat, frustration began to blotch her feeling of happiness and contentment. Not even the intimate

High School Class of '44 Holds 10th Homecoming

Members of the class of 1944 of the Carrier Mills Community high school held their tenth annual homecoming Saturday night, May 29, at the Masonic temple. The ladies of the Eastern Star prepared a delicious supper and served it on tables beautifully decorated with spring flowers and the school colors, purple and gold.

All present gave talks as to what they have been doing in the past 10 years, which was very interesting, after which a short program was held.

The class sent flowers to Mrs. Hilda Dalton and Mrs. Ethel Martin in memory of their sons, Charlie Dalton and Rexal Martin, who gave their lives in World War II, and who were both members of the class of '44. They also sent a get-well card to Richard Portee, who was seriously ill.

Those present were Earlene and "Frog" Cheney of Gary, Ind., Betty and Jewel Berger of Murphysboro, Lou Eva Miller of Marion, Marj. Juanita Black of Chicago, Charlotte Farr of Springfield, Mr. and Mrs. Randall Duncan of Salem, Hugh McCabe of Stonefort, Nellie Bennett of Stonefort, Joe and Arline Williams of Marion, Isiah Harris, Chicago, Audralee Preston and sons, Ysidro, Calif.

Helen Ruth Quick, Ruth and Ben Chaney, Pae Wyatt, Wilma and Huck Nolen, Betty Reeves and Freeman Dale and Gladys Pankey, all of Carrier Mills; one teacher, Mr. and Mrs. Hayes and two children of Terre Haute, Ind., were also present.

It was voted to have another homecoming five years from now and all are hoping to see more of the class members at the next reunion.

pressure of Tom's hand when he helped her out of the car could bring the feeling back. Her own "Good night" and "Thank you" and "See you soon" took on an unpleasant insincerity, when what she really wanted to say was, "Won't you come in?"

When they were in their own room and beginning to undress, Elaine tried to arrange her rebellious words as carefully as Tom had closed the door behind them. She couldn't do it. She turned down the covers and switched off the light. Then, for a long moment, she stood in her daintily flowered nightgown at the window, staring out at the moon-washed hill. Why didn't Tom say something? The answer was obvious at last. This house made him morose, too.

He came toward her now, and she thought he was about to put his arms around her. Instead, he sat down on the window-seat, folded his hands around one knee, and gazed out at the rich fields that were black under the moonbeams.

Probably he was seeing those fields as they would be next summer and the next and the next, each year bringing a variation in the color of each as he rotated his crops and let the cattle run in other meadows. Sometimes she was certain he loved the land more than her. In a way, she loved those fertile rolling fields, too. They never made him morose like this house did.

He was so quiet. What was he thinking about? Little hints of uncertainty began to jitter around in her brain, just like her feet had jittered around Pete's Place with Jerry. The imps compelled her to speak. "How did you enjoy my dance?" she asked.

He looked up at her and his eyes glowed dark in the shadowy light. "I must say you made quite a spectacle."

State Sup't Praises Prison Improvements

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—The state prison superintendent today released a report on an inspection of state penal institutions and had words of praise for each prison.
Supt. James E. Denney said morale and physical conditions at the prisons is "vastly improved." He said there has been a "marked decline" in the turnover of guards at the prisons in the past few months.
He said Gov. William G. Stratton's program of hiring sports celebrities to visit the prisons as instructors and consultants has stimulated new interest in sports and raised the morale of prisoners. Denney cited improvements at Pontiac State Prison under its new warden, Daniel E. Bergan of Kan-kakee.

"The changes effected at Pontiac in recent months are almost unbelievable," Denney said. "The prison grounds and buildings have been landscaped and freshly painted, a new inmate dining hall has been constructed and the kitchen and food service have been greatly improved."

Denney also praised a land reclamation project at Menard State Prison.

"Warden Ross V. Randolph has converted acres of what was formerly considered worthless bottomland into fertile and highly productive farm acreage," he said. "Under his supervision, the inmates have cleared the land of an excessive growth of scrub trees and underbrush, and now the land is flourishing."

"At Joliet—Stateville," Denney said, "the vocational schools have been greatly expanded under the guidance of Warden Joseph E. Ragen, and more inmates are afforded the opportunity of learning a trade that will enable them to re-enter society as decent and useful citizens."

Denney also said more efficient and scientific methods of agriculture were being put in operation by Warden Glen Murphy at Vandalia State Penal Farm.

Blonde Widow Is Strangled

CHICAGO (AP)—Police toured North Side night spots today in search of the strangler of a blonde widow.

The body of Mrs. Helen Anderson, 48, widow of inventor Elmer Prigge, was found Thursday in an arway near the apartment building where she lived.

Police said she had been strangled by a man who apparently attempted to rape her. Her clothing was disarranged and her torn brassiere was found some distance from the body.

Police said the attractive widow had been seen leaving a tavern the night before her death. They canvassed the night spots in the neighborhood in an effort to establish her activities.

A sister, Mrs. Esther Schmidt, said Mrs. Anderson had been drinking heavily the past few months.

Cain Named Director Of Downstate Campaign by Democrats

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Fred A. Cain, Jacksonville, today was named director of the Democratic party's 1954 downstate campaign.

Cain's appointment was announced by State Democratic Chairman James A. Ronan. Cain has been a member of the party's State Central committee for 12 years and has served as both state chairman and vice chairman.

Talbott said he will have engineers, construction men and real estate experts examine the three sites and he expects to "come up with a final answer certainly within a month."

Wife of UN Official Leaps to Her Death

NEW YORK (AP)—Worry caused by poor health was blamed today for the suicide of the wife of a high United Nations official who jumped to her death from the George Washington Bridge into the Hudson River.

Mrs. Gertrude Ranshofen-Wertheimer, 54, a former Austrian baroness, leaped to her death Thursday while several bridge painters watched, powerless to stop her.

She was the wife of Egon Ranshofen-Wertheimer, chief of the department of social affairs of the U. N. secretariat. Friends said she had been in poor health for some time and feared she had a cancer. She left no note.

Resident of Near Creal Springs Dies

The body is now at the Thornton funeral home in Stonefort and will be taken to the family residence this afternoon.

The funeral will be Saturday at 2 p. m. at Indian Camp Baptist church. Rev. George M. Smith, pastor of the Stonefort Baptist church, will conduct the service, and burial will be in Indian Camp cemetery.

The bounce of a rubber ball comes from its elasticity, which is the ability of rubber to restore itself to shape after it has been deformed. Where the ball touches the ground, the rubber is pushed toward the center; then the elastic forces push it back, raising it off the ground again.

Greenberg Asks Inter-League Play in Majors

NEW YORK — Hank Greenberg, who hasn't been able to win a pennant yet in the American League, mapped plans today for a 1955 season in which the winning teams will be champions of both leagues.

The general manager of the Cleveland Indians said he had no idea how his inter-league plan of competition would go over with the other major league moguls when it comes to a vote at the meetings on July 12.

"But I have considerable support for it in both leagues and I think that it has a chance," he said. "I don't want to say too much now because it is a controversial thing and if a lot of talk is stirred up it may be defeated. But I think it is a fair plan for the fans and that it goes with the kind of streamlining that we are doing generally in baseball."

Greenberg's plan calls for the 1955 schedule to be patterned after the National Professional Football League's plan of inter-division play.

Each American and National League team would play its normal schedule with every other team, except that one home and one road game would be cut off. Thus the Indians would play the Yankees 10 times at home and 10 times on the road instead of the present 11-11 arrangement.

"On the other games, the teams involve," Greenberg said, "instead of 77 games at home as at present we would play 70 with American League teams. We would play each National League team one game to complete the 77-game schedule at home. And we would do the same on the road."

Greenberg said that in the final breakdown it would be important to preserve the current 154-game overall schedule for the sake of the records. Thus with the added operation of playing 15 teams instead of seven it would be necessary either to extend the number of games per season for each team or to cut some of the operations in the opposite league.

"In order to do that, I proposed that we play on a 2-2 home and home basis against two clubs and 2-1 against the others, rotating it over the years so that every team played every other team in the opposite league an equal number of times," he said.

Belleville Beats Peoria Manual, 4-1, In Prep Tournament

PEORIA, Ill. — Belleville grabbed a 4-1 victory over Peoria Manual in a much-postponed first-round game of the Illinois high school baseball finals today.

Three Manual errors and a case of bad judgment were Belleville's biggest aids to victory.

Ron Rujawitz, the Belleville hurler, allowed but four hits for his seventh victory without defeat.

Belleville collected eight safeties off Harold Kunkel, Manual sophomore.

The finals will be held Saturday. The Belleville-Peoria Manual game was postponed Thursday for the fourth time because of bad weather. New Trier defeated Thornton Fractional Thursday 3-2, after four postponements.

Jackie Robinson Is Ashamed of Hurling Bat

CHICAGO — Jackie Robinson said today that he hopes baseball fans will not construe his actions in Wednesday's Dodgers-Braves game as typical of ball players.

He said he was very "ashamed" of himself for his actions in the game and said incidents of "this type are bad for baseball."

Robinson threw his bat toward the Dodger dugout after being thrown out of the game by umpire Lee Balfanz. The bat bounced off the runway and hit two box seat customers and an usher in the stands.

"We all get mad," he said, "but none of us throw bats into the stands. It was purely accidental and I hope people realize that."

"I was boiling mad at the time and threw the bat down on the ground, but it accidentally flew into the stands," he said.

Lawyer Hired
Robinson said he called Mr. and Mrs. Peter Wolinsky who were hit by the bat and apologized to them.

The Wolinskys, both about 30, had contemplated a lawsuit. Robinson said he was "a little surprised" that they had hired a lawyer.

James Stern, attorney for the Wolinskys, talked with Robinson Thursday.

Robinson said, "he assured me his clients didn't want to do anything to hurt me or the game. Of course if they were injured it is his job to see that they get whatever damages they have coming."

Stern said Wolinsky had a knot on his forehead and Mrs. Wolinsky was in bed with dizzy spells from a blow near her left eye.

An usher, Harry Melvington, 49, did not indicate he contemplated any action against the Dodger star.

league officials before they will be permitted to play Chairman Ron Derge said today.

Blank contracts may be picked up at Ronnie's studio.

Hank Thompson, Mays Star At Bat in Leading Giants to 13-8 Win Over Cardinals

By MILTON RICHMAN
United Press Sports Writer
Hank Thompson and Willie Mays of the Giants hit their way to a record today, like a pair of guys sharing the same winning sweepstakes ticket.

Thompson and Mays were still cashing in on what undoubtedly was the combined jackpot performance of their career Thursday night against the Cardinals.

Between them, Hank and Willie drove in all of the Giants' runs in a 13-8 conquest at St. Louis.

Thompson combed Gerry Staley for his seventh, eighth and ninth home runs in his first three times up. Hank added a walk and a single in the eighth to drive in a total of eight runs and raise his batting average from .237 to .270 in one night. The game marked his return to the Giant lineup after a 10-day absence due to a knee injury.

Mays Drives in Rest
Mays drove in New York's other five runs with two home runs and a double. The homers were his 15th and 16th of the campaign and tied him with Hank Sauer of the Cubs for the major league lead.

Alvin Dark also contributed two doubles and a pair of singles to the Giant attack while Stan Musial hit the only Cardinal homer, but this was no question that the night belonged chiefly to Thompson and Mays. Marv Grissom, third Giant pitcher, was the winner as New York moved to within a game of the idle, pace-setting Brooklyn Dodgers.

Rain wiped out the remainder of the National League schedule, postponing the games between Brooklyn and Milwaukee, Pittsburgh and Chicago and Philadelphia and Cincinnati.

Yankees Win 2-1
Joe Collins' eighth-inning homer gave the Yankees a 2-1 decision over the Indians and cut Cleveland's American League lead to one game over second-place Chicago, which beat Boston, 9-6.

Southpaw Ed Lopat scattered 11 Indian hits in gaining his sixth victory of the season while Bob Lemon gave up only four hits in suffering his second setback against seven triumphs. It was the first Cleveland loss at Yankee Stadium this year.

Don Johnson of the White Sox came into the game in the eighth inning with two on and two out to retire Harry Agganis on a fly ball and preserve Virgil Trucks' sixth victory. The White Sox drove out Skinny Brown in the fourth when they scored four runs on two doubles, two singles and a walk to go ahead 6-0, then netted the clincher in the fifth when Jim Rivera singled, stole second and scored on Johnny Groth's single. Agganis and Ted Williams each homered for Boston.

Nats Down Tigers
Errors by third baseman Ray Boone and first baseman Charlie Kress helped Washington score four unearned runs and beat Detroit, 4-3, behind the eight-hit hurling of Mickey McDermott. Boone's error paved the way for three Senators runs in the first inning and Kress' error helped McDermott get on base and score Washington's final run in the sixth.

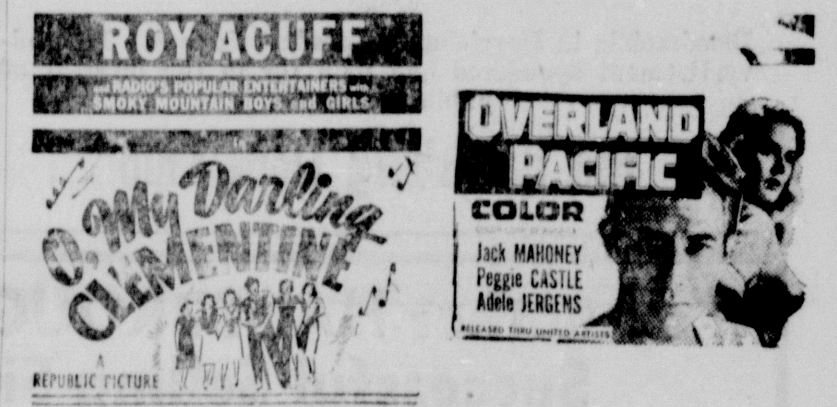

Joe DeMaestri smashed a homer and scored what proved to be the deciding run in Philadelphia's 6-2 victory over Baltimore. Marion Fricano pitched nine-hit ball for his second triumph. Don Larsen was the loser.

Thursday's Star: Hank Thompson, Giants, for driving in eight runs in his team's 13-8 victory over St. Louis with three homers and a single.
